Arnold Schwarzenegger returns as the famous Terminator in Terminator 2: Judgment Day, a film that continues the story of John

Connor's struggle to defeat the unstoppable killing machine that has already nearly killed him. During the night in 1984, John Connor (Edward Furlong) is informed that the Terminator has been made aware that its mission is to kill him, and that the termination signal will be sent to the University where John is attending college. As a precaution, John is sent back to the past with Kyle Reese (Michael Biehn) and sent back to 1984 in time to protect Sarah Connor (Linda Hamilton) and kill the Terminator. John and Kyle are pursued by the Terminator, and the battle ensues. The Terminator uses an arsenal of cutting-edge weaponry, such as a pair of handguns that fire liquid metal, to fight John and Kyle. Eventually, John and Kyle are forced to enter Sarah's mind and use her knowledge of past events to destroy the Terminator.

In the second of four films set in the Terminator universe, Arnold Schwarzenegger returns as the legendary Terminator, a humanoid machine who is sent back in time to kill John Connor (Edward Furlong). After John fails to destroy the Terminator, Kyle Reese (Michael Biehn) is sent back to protect Sarah Connor (Linda Hamilton) and John, and the battle for the future begins....
