The Atlantic reported that the Easter party, which spanned the weekend and included a Sunday morning service, was to be “an unforgettable family experience.” The article continues, “The Easter Egg Roll, which featured a variety of activities for children and was scheduled to run from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., was to feature “highly trained actors,” who would dress as pirates, rabbits, and eggs, among other avatars.” Rather than take advantage of the opportunity for pictures, the boys, Donald Trump Jr., and Eric Trump, stayed in the residence with the rest of the family and did not attend the egg roll. Eric Trump tweeted a picture of a “wild, loud, nasty Easter egg roll” that he was “not a part of.” The boy’s absence from this event likely wasn’t a tough call, as the Atlantic reported that the Easter egg roll was scheduled to start at 10:30 a.m. and they arrived around noon. We know that the Trump children did not go to this event because we caught a glimpse of them in a car in California. Trump Jr. and Eric Trump attended a separate private Easter Egg roll at the family home in Palm Beach, Florida, at which kids could attend in swimwear. The Atlantic also reported that the Easter service featured Donald Trump Jr., Eric Trump, and Ivanka Trump, with Melania Trump and Barron Trump not in attendance. Trump Jr. tweeted a picture of his daughter, Arabella, being led through the Easter service, and stated that it was “beautiful.” The Atlantic piece goes on to say, “The service was conducted by an Episcopal minister of the 20th Century Church of Bethesda-by-the-Sea. The clergyman, Rev. Canon Michael A. S. Hoffman, said he led the service “because of my deep respect for the family.”” Despite all of these reports, Trump Jr.’s tweeted picture of the service, in which he appears to
