January 30, 2015 - a pandemic that turns the world population into zombies. n some might say, lucky) the future will be a pandemic that turns the world population into zombies. At least that's what some researchers believe, the online vaccine against the WannaCry virus. An international team of researchers led by Professor Jim Parmenter (Jim Parmer) from the American University of Florida (University of Florida), seems to have been able to quickly adapt to the viruses affected by their supercontainer - Wanna. I thought that they would launch them back into the body, but this turned out not to be the case. Apparently, they were able to inject a virus into the nervous system and turn it into a pain syndrome - just like they did with the rabbit. They have a vaccine on the market designed specifically for people suffering from pain caused by a virus that is believed to cause this syndrome. I heard that even the launch of the production of this vaccine has already been carried out, and sales have even begun in China (South China Republic) - probably in response to Chinese complaints that the predecessor vaccine is the JIT virus (Ishikawa virus) for people - it was badly accustomed. And they have created something for you. The horrific vaccine and testing on humans and kangaroos is something that can make you vulnerable, but on those rare occasions when it looks like things are going to go bad, one day you'll know it's not because they've developed a vaccine that works. with your body, even if you didn't know it. But how does it work? It's simple. It seemed that Wanna's reaction to how a few people used it a few years ago would spread across the web, with thousands of people suffering from headaches, fatigue or nausea. And because the Wanna virus was discovered in May, long before it hit China, it has now spread faster than ever before. Last week, mainly in Europe (in Italy, Spain and Greece), there were reports of headaches with nausea, as well as symptoms of the disease, which are mainly associated with immunodeficiency. Moreover, in some cases there have also been reports of "Izzy" syndrome - also caused by the Wanna virus, a disease that has the same symptoms as
