We report here the results of the modeling of the human membrane-bound adenylate cyclase subunit AC2. This subunit is implicated in the linkage of the hormone receptors to adenylate cyclase. By analyzing the structure of the beta and gamma subunits of the catalytic domain of the Escherichia coli adenylate cyclase, it has been possible to obtain a molecular model for the human homolog, based on known sequences. The homology was greatest in subdomain 2, which is the most divergent region between the two. The model was used to identify residues of AC2 that might be involved in ligand binding. A number of these residues exhibit striking similarities with those previously shown to be important for ligand binding in the beta subunit. Q: Why did Obi-Wan choose to go to Coruscant?
