A: I've also seen this issue and i resolved it. For me this is the solution. I am using raspistill -o image.jpg which generates files in current directory. i changed the output folder to images directory. raspistill -o images/ Q: Sizing a banner based on the width of the screen I have a 300 x 100 banner (for youtube channels) that I'm using for my website. The banner is centered and fixed on top of the page. The banner has also a padding of 30. I want the banner to adapt to the size of the screen so that the whole banner fits the screen, but I only want it to shrink till it hits the width of a 40" screen, and maybe only to the width of a 27" screen, and not to the width of a 50" screen, due to the fact that i want the channel to only fit in those screen sizes. Can anyone help me with this? Thanks A: You can use media queries to apply different styling to different screen sizes. You can also use viewport units for things like percentages in media queries: @media all and (min-width: 40em) { /*Styles for a 40em width screen*/ } @media all and (min-width: 27.5em) and (max-width: 40em) { /*Styles for a 27.5 to 40 screen*/ } @media all and (min-width: 18em) and (max-width: 27.5em) { /*Styles for a 18 to 27.5 screen*/ } The only real limitation is that you are stuck with the exact screen size in the query. You can't add or subtract pixels from the query as you can in css. But you can use things like percentage units to account for different viewport sizes. Manifesto, a Netflix original comedy series created by writers Alyson and Ivan Berg, officially announced on Thursday that it has canceled after two seasons. The comedy, which primarily follows five friends (played by Nanclares and James Jordan ) as they form a co-ed a cappella group in Los Angeles, premiered in June 2017 and has amassed a modest but dedicated following among Netflix 3e33713323
