Key tags provided to fuel a fiercely competitive environment, you need to make every visit count, even if you fail to see the promised land. Checkmark is the next-generation GPU Link for Google Earth. It allows you to link your Google Earth and Google Checkmark accounts, so that you have a unified record of all of your maps, photos, notes and 3D layers. Checkmark keeps and is a web-based database of all the places you have visited on Google Earth. When you are in Checkmark, you have all the data available from Google Earth, in the same place, and on the same mapping interface as the places you have visited and photographed. Checkmark's database and visualization capabilities make it ideal for quickly checking that you have visited every place you know and for seeing the large changes in your life. You can link to any Maps, Places, Notes and 3D layers, and Search for these layers in Checkmark. You can also bookmark and tag places. Checkmark also includes a sequence editor for recording GPS tracks, including batch processing and the ability to record secondary locations at the same time. You can query Checkmark from any web browser, and Checkmark even works with Internet Explorer 7 and above. When
