MEYER, Appellant, v. The STATE of Nevada, Respondent. No. 25593. Supreme Court of Nevada. February 16, 1993. Bryan Cave, and Jack B. White, Las Vegas, for appellant. Frankie Sue Del Papa, Atty. Gen., Carson City, for respondent. OPINION PER CURIAM: Jeanette M. Meyer was convicted by a jury of battery with serious bodily harm or injury, a violation of NRS 200.508. Her sentence was enhanced by twenty-seven years to life and the district court directed that she serve this sentence consecutively with her sentences for sexual assault, child abuse, and child neglect. We affirm. The victim's brother placed an ad in the newspaper seeking a roommate in an effort to help his troubled sister with her drug and alcohol problem. The victim, a minor, responded to the ad and moved into appellant's home on April 18, 1991. The victim's brother observed that the victim's appearance and behavior had changed. For example, appellant directed the victim to get up and do exercises a great deal. The victim was also told to do chores that he would not have been asked to do, such as sweeping the floors. On the second night of the victim's stay, the victim and appellant drank a large amount of wine and a bottle of pills. The victim told his brother that he was not having a good time and felt sorry for himself. After the victim and his brother discussed their problems, the victim became upset and began arguing with his sister. He tried to push her, but she grabbed him and began to punch him. After the victim fell on the floor, appellant kicked him. The victim later testified that he still had difficulty swallowing, that he did not feel well, and 09e8f5149f

What's New in the Portable EF Duplicate Files Manager?

1. Have you ever read a document or a website and discovered that it is somehow duplicated somewhere else, or that you've downloaded some files that you don't have? 2. Do you want to avoid downloading those same files again, or find the original source for them? 3. Have you ever wanted a tool to notify you when you've already downloaded a file? We've all been there. Well, you're in luck, as today, we've put our efforts into creating and sharing a tool that can do exactly what you want and more. EF Duplicate Files Manager is a freeware application that will notify you when you download duplicates or when you've already downloaded a specific file. After the initial download and installation, the next thing you need to do is to select the option "Automatically find duplicate files." If you're a regular Internet user, you may wonder why you would use this tool. Well, we'll see. Simply put, a lot of people use the Internet and simply download media or other files they want to use, from the very simplest files to those that can be one of the best or most expensive on the market. Well, you've probably noticed that there are always duplicates of those files out there that you've already downloaded or plan to download. In fact, often, the file you want to download is free, so chances are there is a duplicate copy somewhere. However, it can happen that the copy you've already downloaded may be missing a file or in a different format, which may even cause your download to fail, so a lot of users like to avoid that. We've heard this and decided to do something about it. EF Duplicate Files Manager works very quickly, as it is a stand-alone tool that doesn't require any installation and can be run right from your main window. You can choose the action you want to perform on the dupes: rename, move, copy or send to Recycle Bin. All in all, the portable counterpart of EF Duplicate Files Manager can help you benefit from the large range of features this app has to offer, while also enjoying its portability.
