The Content table has a column of ContentId, while the Level and ContentUser tables have a column of ContentId. The goal is to create a CTE to create a hierarchy of Content, and the Level and ContentUser tables maintain the parent and child relationship between Content and Level, as well as User and Content. CREATE TABLE Content (ContentId integer PRIMARY KEY NOT NULL, Title text COLLATE utf8_general_ci NOT NULL, Description text COLLATE utf8_general_ci, DateAdded date, ContentTypeId integer); CREATE TABLE Level (LevelId integer PRIMARY KEY NOT NULL, Description text COLLATE utf8_general_ci, DateAdded date, LevelOrder integer); CREATE TABLE ContentUser (UserId integer PRIMARY KEY NOT NULL, Username text COLLATE utf8_general_ci NOT NULL, ContentId integer NOT NULL, CONSTRAINT FK_USERS_CONTENT FOREIGN KEY (UserId) REFERENCES USERS (UserId)); I have been trying to use recursive CTE's, and after a lot of trial and error, and researching, this is what I have come up with. It looks like a nested CTE
