'The Rise' - New York Post. present invention relates to a balloon catheter for coronary angioplasty and particularly to such a catheter which is specially configured to more effectively and efficiently carry out the distal arterial wall recanalization to open the lumen and deliver a stent to the site of the stenosis. One of the major problems in the treatment of coronary arteries has been the acceptance of a device to improve the results of coronary angioplasty. This invention relates to an improved stent which is delivered through the balloon catheter. Angioplasty is a technique used for the treatment of vascular occlusion. The technique involves the formation of a lesion in the blockage, followed by the expansion of the lesion with an inflatable balloon. The balloon is inflated to compress the lesion into the vessel wall. The inflated balloon is then deflated and
