The incident took place Sunday morning off the coast of the northern Gaza Strip. "The Israeli navy command has confirmed this is a violation of international law and it was carried out without any notification or warning," a representative of the UN said, according to the Palestinian Authority (PA). A video of the alleged incident shows a huge explosion off the coast of Gaza. "The Israeli navy ship opened fire toward the fishing boat which was carrying some 12 Palestinians," said Muhammad al-Hummus, the PA representative of fishermen. Hummus added that the incident took place near Kibbutz Zikim. The area is located in the southern part of the coastal strip. When asked by Al-Monitor about the issue, the Israeli Navy said, "At no time did our forces open fire on Palestinian vessels." It continued, "Pursuant to standard operating procedures, the Israeli Navy occasionally conducts maritime patrols in the area between the Gaza Strip and the northern shore of the country. The Navy occasionally identifies suspicious vessels and conducts routine safety checks." However, "We are aware of information concerning a tragic incident involving a Palestinian fishing boat in the northern area of the Gaza Strip," read an official statement from the Navy. "The Egyptian authorities have been notified of the incident and are currently investigating the incident. The Navy has taken various steps to help minimize the effects of the incident," the statement concluded. There are concerns in the region that this incident could turn out to be part of a pattern. On March 14, 2009, 13 Palestinian sailors were killed after Israel allegedly attacked a fishing boat in the northern Gaza Strip. According to the Palestinian Authority (PA), the boat was near the Palestinian enclave's border with Israel. After the attack, the Israeli Navy said in a statement that it had identified the boat and that the incident was an "app 648931e174
