What's New In?

McAfee Family Protection (formerly FortiWeb) is designed to be used by parents to protect their children from inappropriate sites as well as from other online threats and predators. It is a browser-based solution that can be installed on any PC. It is not an add-on to an existing browser but rather it installs a new browser that plays the role of a web filter and parental control program. McAfee Family Protection has a local database that stores all the information about the websites a child is trying to visit. By analyzing this database,

McAfee Family Protection can determine if the website is malicious or not. If the website is classified as malicious, McAfee Family Protection can block it or display a message to the parent that the site is undesirable and should not be visited. McAfee Family Protection (formerly FortiWeb) is a free download. I have the original browser on my system, which was installed by Win 98 SE with the original IE 6. I'm an IT consultant, who works mainly on computer applications, security, and networking. I'm also a freelance information system consultant. Recently, I've been devising useful security applications for education, like this antivirus. I'm from Canada and the Philippine, living at Misamis Occidental. I'm also a member of the Philippine Computer Users Association. I apologize for my post in the wrong forum. I'm looking for a firewall for home and small business. There's no shortage of firewalls but all have problems I don't want and the few good choices have too many limitations. I've had a simple firewall for years and it works great. The problem is I have some business sensitive data and my ISP offers a paid service that does threat monitoring but it's either half the price or has poor features
