He worked in a mill during the day and apprenticed in a tailoring shop in the evenings. In 1953, he opened L'Apollo, in Rome's EUR district. His clothes were a hit, and soon he was working with the likes of Audrey Hepburn, Ingrid Bergman, and Grace Kelly. L'Apollo didn't survive Mazzola's death in 1988, but it lives on in the hands of Nick Black, and today it's one of the world's leading purveyors of shirts and pants. L'Apollo also has a sprawling store in Florence. See more here, and shop both locations here.Our goals are to make this platform is easy and interesting by providing access to a large library of the best free collection of royalty free stock music, royalty free loops and MIDI files, and royalty free royalty free images.
