As the world's number one wine exporter, Chile has one of the most diverse wine landscapes in the world with tens of thousands of hectares of vineyards nestled in the far northern end of the Andes. The country's best wine is found here. From the hearty expanses of Malbec and Carménère at the southern foothills, up through the Bordeaux-style blends that come from the Bío-Bío region in the north to the cool-climate Grüner Veltliner from the Chilean province of Ñuble in the north. The Queso Blanco is a cheap cheese that originated in Patagonia. It is a semi-firm cheese and often mixed with
